

Dear diary,

I keep telling you everything. One of the hardest decisions people get to make in life is choosing whether to walk away or try harder, and I am finally tired of trying. I have exhausted all my options in trying to reunite them. Mom has taken care of me single handedly ever since she parted ways with dad but why would she engage in the drug cartel? She loves me and wanted to take care of me.. She has always wanted the best for me, yet today she is in danger of spending the rest of her life behind bars... No, I can't think of a life without her. She shouldn't go to jail.. Also dad has forced me into taking up Police services, and I can't fit in with the trainees. It's so not my type, the training. How do I convince him to let me out of this? Only if life was a little easier...